

Mr. & Mrs. Smith

Playing bridge is a great activity to enjoy with one's spouse. However, some bridge clubs have a Mr. And Mrs. Smith in their ranks, and perhaps these couples are temperamentally better suited to chess or backgammon.

At a club duplicate the entire North-South field was having a bad day and missed the lay-down slam. Instead, they played in three notrump making the obvious twelve tricks, except at the table where a tricky declarer scored an extra trick from an unlikely source.

Lead: ♠ 10

Mrs. Smith knew that, after this auction, the lead of a major suit is usually called for. The ♠10 was the obvious choice and declarer won that with dummy's queen. Declarer now rattled off dummy's clubs, throwing from his hand two diamonds, the ♥J and the ♥K (cunningly keeping the heart two!).

Next, declarer cashed spades and the defense lapsed into auto-pilot mode. Declarer seemed to be out of hearts and so they both felt compelled to hang on to diamonds. On the last spade, Mr. Smith, who by now was down to ♥A and ♦KJ, tossed away the ♥A, wondering why declarer was wasting time playing out the hand. At trick twelve, declarer cashed the ♦A, and Mr. Smith leaned forward to claim trick thirteen with his ♦K. But declarer rather took the wind out of Mr. Smith's sails by (somewhat mischievously) announcing "the board's good". And so it was, as the sneaky heart two was led to dummy's three for the thirteenth trick.

In the post mortem the Smiths exchanged ideas:

"Why didn't you"
"Did you really think I"
 "keep a heart? No reason"
"pitched nine-eight-seven"
 "to keep the"
"and kept the two?"
 "diamond queen unless"
"I wish you would"
 "you were planning"
"pay attention"
 "to win it at trick fourteen"
